The dwelling was ransacked, but so far as ascertained nothing was removed. The occupants of the dwelling were absent from home on a

-The annual meeting of the Magdalen Society was held yesterday. This institution has been in existence for seventy years, and now contains sixty-six inmates. During the past year six inmates left the asylum at their own request, nine went to service, one to the Almshouse, and eight returned to their friends.

-A conference was had last evening between the Fire Commission and the Committee on Fire of Councils, which resulted in the committee agreeing to report an ordinance on Thursday next for the repeal of the part of the law which prevents the Commissioners leasing real estate they cannot have absolute control over and entire possession of. Very many of the engine houses are rented in part to societies and for school purposes, and under the law as it now stands none such can be leased for the use of the new

At a meeting of the Board of Public Education held yesterday the Committee on Supplies asked to be discharged from the consideration of the petition of A. B. Justice & Co., setting forth that their bid for slate pencils was twenty-six cents lower than that of J. B. Lippincott & Co., to whom the contract was awarded. The committee say that A. B. Justice & Co. did not comply with a rule of the board which necessitates the making of affidavits on the part of all bidders for supplies, so their bid could not be enter-The wish of the committee was complied with. Mr. Green offered a resolution calling upon City Councils to make the yearly appropriations to the board as soon as possible, as the schools were suffering from the want of supplies. Adopted.

A resolution was then adopted authorizing the framing of a bill on compulsory education, and the meeting adjourned. -The Assay Commissioners proceeded yesterday with their labors at the United States Mint. The assay was completed, and the coins from the Mint and branches found to be fully up to the standard, both in purity and weight. The weights used in the department of the Chief Coiner, Chief Refiner, and others were tested and found to be accurate. After completing their labors the commissioners partook of a handsome collation, at which were present, besides the commissioners, the Japanese Assistant Minister of Finance, Jushe (or Prince) Hirobumie Ito, and Takoi (or Professor) Fonkoutsi, Secretary of the Japanese Commission. Addresses were made by ex-Governor Pollock, Director of the Mint, Judge Cadwalader, President of the Assay Commission, and Takoi Foukoutsi of Foreign Affairs. -Many Bonapartist agents are at Bordeaux.

 A committee to negotiate peace has been selected at Bordeaux. -Premier Gladstone denies that the Prussians placed obstacles in the way of provisioning Paris. -The Orleanists held a caucus yesterday, and they believe themselves to possess a clear majority.

-It is stated, on good authority, that Germany will never restore to France the territory covered by the city of Strasburg. -In the departments of France where no

German troops are stationed the Francs-tireurs are committing great depredations. -Minister Cremieux has ordered the liberation of Berezowski, who was imprisoned for attempting the life of the Emperor of Russia. -The Italian Chamber of Deputies has,

by a vote of 204 against 139, approved the policy of the ministry relative to the inviolability of the Papal residence. -A portion of the Paris war contribution has already been paid.

MÆNNERCHOR BAL MASQUE.

The seventh annual bal masque and carnival of the Mænnerchor Singing Society came off at the Academy last evening, and was a grand success. The Mænnerchor surpassed itself, and the months of labor the committee of arrangements have spent with the object of making the carnival a success have been more than repaid, for the grand entertainment even exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine. Never did the Academy present a more brilliant or animated appearance. The parquette circle and balcony were filled to overflowing with spectators, consisting of portly paterfamilias, stately dowagers, brighteyed, blushing maidens, and gay and gallant young gentlemen attendants.

The dancing floor presented a scene that the pen of a Dickens could scarce do justice to. Every imaginable character was repre-

The Academy was beautifully decorated with hanging baskets, evergreens, and flags of different nationalities, and the music was very superior. It was a scene of joyous, healthful fun and morriment, and the occasion will long live in the memories of those who had the good fortune to be participants. As a pecuniary success the affair exceeded expectations. To the lasting credit of the Mænnerchor Society, it may be mentioned that the managers have resolved to appropriate one-half of the net proceeds of the ball to the sufferers by the French-German war, and no mean sum will be realized.

The San Domingo Commission. A Washington despatch says that previous to the sailing of the San Domingo Commission, Allen G. Burton, their secretary, stated that the plan for the landing of the commission, which he should submit to the commission for their consideration, was to land opposite the City of San Domingo back of the island. The reason for this course, he stated, was to avoid coming in contact with such persons only as should be sent by Baez, it being more desirable, in order to obtain a truthful condition of the facts to be ascertained, for the commission to consult with the people as they might find them. It is believed that the commission have adopted Mr. Burton's plan. If so, ten or twelve days would elapse, in addition to the time contem-templated, before hearing from them.

A BIT OF LITERARY HISTORY. A correspondent furnishes the New York Tribune with the following interesting item:-Sir:—One of the peculiar attractions te students and men of letters in the cultured city of Edinburgh is an antiquarian book-shop which, for the past forty years, has been known as "The Head of Sir Walter Scott" for some sixty years previously, simply as "Stevenson's"—and the history of which is identified, to a greater or less extent, with that of nearly every Scotchman noted or distinguished in the various branches of literature during that period. It was a favorite resort of Jeffrey, Murray, and Sydney Smith; of Brougham, Horner, and Thomas Brown; of Lord Cockburn, Sir Henry Raeburn, and Sir Walter Scott; later, of Chalmers and Guthrie, Tytler and Allison, Lockhart, Motherwell. and "Christopher North;" after them, et Hallam and Aytoun, Gilfillan, Bell and Luing, Alexander Smith, the brothers Chambers, Burton, Maidment, and Carlyle. Here was the proposed Kdinburgh Review talked over, in the winter of 1801-2; here was the Bannatyne Club discussed just twenty years afterwards; here have been published hundreds of volumes, original works, and rare reprints, illustrating the history, poetry, bibliography, and antiquities of Scotland; here have been executed the most perfect printing on vellum, the most accurate replica of old folios in the rich black-letter text, the most faithful fac-similes of ancient MSS., and here have been distributed catalogues and other gratuitous pamphlet publications now worth their weight in gold. The same family have owned the shop and carried on the business for generations. The present proprietor, Mr. Thomas George Stevenson, a ripe scholar and courteous gentleman, is the only son of Mr. John Stevenson, a life-long friend of the author of "Wavarley." Among the treasures of the shop there are preserved some fifty letters from this illustrious correspondent, all unpublished, and handsomely bound. The present Mr. Stevenson — whose recollections back to the early part of the century-is assisted in the discharge of his duties and the extension of his hospitality by an only son, Mr. John A., himself the accomplished editor of several works. During one of the delightful conversazioni here a few months ago the Rev. Dr. Rogers spoke of a project to erect a monument in Edinburgh to the Bruce, which had been undertaken by a number of Scotch neblemen, who had requested his friend Mr. George Cruikshank to model a design. Of this model the Doctor had just received a photograph, which he allowed the party to examine. This called forth some close criticism and some merited compliments to the veteran artist, and was the means of bringing out some clever anecdotes of him. One of the gentlemen present mentioned that one of his ear-but that he originated the now prevalent style of book illustration-that of late years there had existed a mania for the collection of his etchings, which brought, wherever found, a large price. A number of these, with some rare volumes containing wood-cuts designed by him nearly sixty years ago, were shown by Mr. Stevenson. An American gentleman present declared it to be his belief that the reputation of Mr. Dickens' early works was in a great degree attributable to the admirable illustrations of this artist accompanying them, whereupon he was assured that Mr. Cruiksbank had illustrated one or two only of Mr. Dickens' works. This led to a discussion, which resulted in a wager by the American that Mr. Cruiksbank had illustrated no less than six of Mr. Dickens' works.

It was taken up by a publisher present, and a note was at once addressed to the artist, at London, explaining the circumstances. A few days afterwards the following answer was received, disclosing some singular facts in regard to Mr. Dickens. The veracity and honor of the writer cannot admit of a doubt: -

"263, Hampstead Road, N. W. (London), Nov. 12, 1870.—Dear Sir:—You have lost your wager! for I did not illustrate the works of the late Mr. Charles Dickens to the extent that most people suppose; but I am not surprised at the fact of their being misled; for the other artists employed upon his works imited.

tated my style as closely as possible, and hence the public supposed—as Dickens wrote under the name of 'Boz'—that I designed and etched under the name of 'Phiz' but who was a very clever artist of the name of Hablot K. Browns. I was, however, the first artist to illustrate any of Mr. Dickens' writings, and the earliest of these was the first volume of 'Sactones by Boz' (January 1816, and the next was the second volume under this title, the greatest part of which were written from my hints and suggestions.

"Some time after this, Mr. Bentley started his Miscellans, appointing Mr. Dickens as editor, and myself as the illustrator; and the first plate in that work is a design of mine, which Mr. Dickens wrote work is a design of mine, which Mr. Dickens wrote up to. There was also a wood cut of a beadle, etc. Then followed (1859) Oliver Twist, which was entirely my own idea and suggestion, and all the characters are mine. And this will account for the fact of Oliver Twist' being very different from any of his other writings. When Mr. Crone, the publisher, died (he having published the 'Sketches by Boz'), a volume was brought out for the benefit of his widow.

"Mr. Diskens wrote some part of this whon I

"Mr. Dickens wrote some part of this, which I illustrated; and these are all the designs and etchlings that I did to illustrate the works of that author. I am preparing to publish an explanation of the reason why I did not illustrate the whole of Mr. Dickens' writings, and this explanation will not at all redound to his credit. It was only yesterday evening that I got some of the prospectuses for the Bruce monument, four of which I forward to you by the same post as this letter.
